AutoCAD can create 2D and 3D plans and drawings, such as architectural and engineering drawings, and can convert 2D drawings to 3D. Users can also create and edit annotations, such as text, comments, dimensions, notes, and special symbols. For example, a user can place text in the margin of a drawing so that it appears in the final printout. AutoCAD users can also share drawings on the internet via online file-sharing websites, like Google Drive and Dropbox. While AutoCAD is mostly used for creating 2D and 3D plans and drawings, it can also be used for a variety of other purposes, including creating desktop publishing (DTP) documents, gaging, floor planning, mining, production planning, property management, structural and engineering drawings, surveying, space planning, and vehicle design. Autodesk's AutoCAD is widely used for architectural and engineering design, by architects, engineers, and builders. When using AutoCAD, a user creates a drawing on screen or prints it out. AutoCAD can also export a drawing as a vector or raster image, which can be viewed with a computerized drawing program, like Illustrator or Photoshop, or as a printout. AutoCAD is an industry standard, used by tens of thousands of architects, engineers, and builders. AutoCAD software programs for

AutoCAD include AutoCAD LT (Basic or Professional), AutoCAD LE (Electronic Design), AutoCAD 2017, AutoCAD X (Professional), AutoCAD LT Advanced, AutoCAD LT Pro, AutoCAD 360 Architectural Design, AutoCAD 360 Electrical Design, AutoCAD 360 Mechanical Design, AutoCAD 360 Structural Design, AutoCAD 360 3D Design, AutoCAD 360 Electrical Design Pro, AutoCAD 360 Power, AutoCAD 360 P&ID, AutoCAD 360 MEP, AutoCAD 360 FEA, AutoCAD 360 Composites, AutoCAD 360 Reclosing, AutoCAD 360 Industrial Design, AutoCAD 360 Surveying,

No more losing your place in your drawings when you import an image from a paper or PDF document. With AutoCAD drawing and editing changes made in the app or online, your drawing changes get applied automatically to your drawings. Add images to drawing parts with the image mapping and image import features in Illustrator. (video: 2:20 min.) Continue to receive feedback from your customers with our new Markup Assist feature. Just use the new Markup button or command to add to your drawings, for instance, text notes and other annotations, comments, or drawings you need to provide for the customer. Incorporate and export your sheet metal drawings with the Sheet Metal feature. (video: 1:58 min.) Save time with dynamic numbering in your drawings. Change the numbering on a sheet and the numbering gets applied to the whole drawing. Improved DesignCenter: DesignCenter is your online design tool for collaboration, whether you work in AutoCAD directly or you use our web-based technology. Use DesignCenter to work with colleagues or communicate with customers through online drawing reviews, design feedback, and responses to comments. Create new sheets and layers, and collaborate with colleagues on the fly. Pull in more information, such as layers, properties, properties, text, and comments, so you can understand the document and design more effectively. Filter DesignCenter by drawing content, properties, comments, views, and hidden objects. Work with large files from any device, anywhere. DesignCenter supports large files up to 50 MB in size. Share your designs directly from DesignCenter. You can send a document link, drawing link, or clipboard file. Start drawing your new design from DesignCenter and finish it on the desktop. DesignCenter in AutoCAD is fully integrated with the new Win32 features in AutoCAD 2023. This is the first release of DesignCenter with the new features in AutoCAD. Support for Office 365 and SharePoint You can use the new Remote Rendering feature to create and share on-screen real-time designs or renderings in your Office 365 or SharePoint Online account. You don't have to leave AutoCAD to share your designs. (video: 1:35 min.) New Release Manager: The new Release Manager in AutoCAD lets you schedule and release new feature updates to users
