The most impressive improvements in FIFA 22 are all found in the touch, ball control and shooting parts of the game. Players have more intuitive controls and are more "human" in their movements. The ball is better able to recognize the player's reactions and is even better at responding to those reactions, making controls more intuitive, especially during shots. Players are even able to pick out other players and anticipate how they will move. The cutting edge technology used to capture the player's actions could one day work its way into the mainstream of video games. However, the technology isn't fully mature at this point in time. FIFA 20 felt like an early version of this - but it has since been refined even further. While technical teething issues of FIFA 19 still linger in the memory, FIFA 20 proved that "HyperMotion technology" wasn't the future. It was the present. FIFA 20 was undoubtedly the best experience of the new "HyperMotion technology" of the FIFA series. But this is the first FIFA in the franchise since FIFA 18 that doesn't include any new features or gameplay tweaks. Instead, this is a full game, complete with game engine overhauls, features and fixes. FIFA 22 should feel a little different. But I'm not sure it will.

GAMEPLAY AND CONTROLS - SIX YOUTHS IN HIDDEN STAGES

Player Intelligence Player intelligence is the most noticeable improvement in FIFA 22. Now, players react to what happens to them more appropriately. They are able to anticipate how they should move based on the situation and what the opponent is doing. Although, there are no more "player types" in FIFA 22, you still have to learn how to play each unique position. Sometimes, players become so predictable. They only know a few sets of patterns, with predictable techniques. This can affect your gameplay as well. A predictable player who performs a particular move at a particular time can be a major challenge to deal with. A player who's always ready to sprint towards the ball in a certain area can be a problem for other players. The best way to deal with this is to move around them. This doesn't always mean that you should make a run around them, but rather you should try and guide them in another direction by moving towards them. They will follow. This is a good example of

Fifa 22 Features Key:

- Authentic, high-speed gameplay is driven using motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data is used to power FIFA 22's game mechanics for the first time.
- Career Mode - In addition to the traditional "manager mode," FIFA 22 introduces a deeper Player Career mode based on motions brought about by actual players in high-intensity football.
- FIFA Ultimate Team - New and enhanced Ultimate Team modes allow you to build a team from scratch, as well as collect and win competitions and earn unique items.
- Real-life player likeness, emotion and personality - A swathe of new TrueSkill-powered player intelligence systems ensure realistic gameplay, with every player's style, performance and temperament adapting to match the real-life character of the individual.
- Configurable control system - Using physical gameplay data, players balance (commonly called "Precision Passing") can be adapted to different styles of play, based on an intuitive system of customisation that enables players to experiment with alternative tactics and even turn off certain gameplay modes altogether to experience game play more like the real thing.
- Player Trajectories - Both how a player goes about their run in the opponent box, and the way a player moves after the tackle are captured by motion tracking to improve player reactions. As the AI adapts to your style of play, it will adjust both of these behaviours to make it seem like they're reacting naturally to what you're actually doing.
- FIFA Emotions - Real players make it difficult to switch off the player emotion system, but can be configured to your own exacting standards.
- Many new kits - Clothes talking just as much as players, with new clothing and kits from Italy, Japan, Mexico, South Korea, the UK, the USA, Brazil and more.
- FIFA Ultimate Team - New and improved roster manager with smarter and more intuitive systems, more user-friendly interface, more inventory slots, more development modes, and improved card buying algorithm.
