CALIFORNIA California's Sales Tax, Starved Of Money, Must Preserve Its Resources The Great Majority Could Support Far Better Spending March 21, 1998 SB 22, a proposal to extend the sales tax to produce $1 billion for the state, is cooked up by Republican Assemblyman Jim Brulte and made redundant by Gov. Pete Wilson's veto of a similar initiative a week earlier. "After the huge Democratic gains last month," Republican state Senator Charles Caldera tells me, "the GOP [are] suffering from buyer's remorse over last year's initiative scheme." It is true that Republicans did not want the sales tax to pass because it would have added to their tax burden, but they failed to come
