No more scary than being cursed on your own wedding day. Is it dangerous? No more dangerous than being in someone else's body and in someone else's world. Does it hurt? No more painful than losing your innocence in the arms of a strange man. Deadly? Yes, but he promised. Ever since I was a little girl, I've dreamed of finding my Prince. At least when I was a little girl, I always believed that one day, the man of my dreams would knock on my door. Handsome, smart, kind, strong, incapable of meanness and false promises. And one day, it happened. There was a knock on the door, and I opened it... Not to the Prince. I opened the door of my destiny. I opened it to fall in love with a monster. A creature I wanted nothing to do with. But it was the thing that kept me from going mad. I don't know what it was. love, pity, fear, gratitude, protection, but it kept me alive. - What are you really capable of? - he asked. I looked at him in wonder. - What am I capable of? - Yes," he answered. - Of what? I stared at him. I wasn't expecting that question. - I don't know," I said. - In a way, I'm not capable of anything at all. - But it's not your choice, is it? I looked at him. - How's that? - Well, you can tell me if you want to. - And if I don't tell you? He shook his head. - Then I won't. - What about your job? - I already have one, and I can afford not to work for it for a while longer. - But what if I don't want to tell? - I don't want to hurt you," he said. - You've already hurt me," I replied. - What do you plan to do? He got up from his seat and walked toward the door. - You need to sleep. - Will I dream about you? - No. - Why not? - I'm afraid. - That it will turn out I was wrong about myself. - Then why are you? - Because I want to change the world for the better. - Why do you want to do that? - Because I think I can change the world for the better. - How? - You really want to know? - I do. - I want everyone to know that everyone is a person. - And then what? - And that all people are brothers. - ð~? - ð~... And that all people are happy.
