Transcriptional regulation of the human bcl-2 promoter. The bcl-2 proto-oncogene is one of a family of anti-apoptotic genes which are believed to protect cells against a variety of death signals. It was originally isolated as a gene induced by the v-bcl-2 oncogene product of Abelson murine leukemia virus. The promoter region of the human bcl-2 gene has been characterized and shown to contain several regulatory elements. In this study, an area of more than 2 kb upstream from the transcriptional start point of the gene was shown to contain many transcription factor-binding sites which may regulate the transcriptional activation of bcl-2. Several of the transcription factor-binding sites identified are homologous to those of the human c-myc gene. A region of 967 bp upstream from the transcriptional start point of the gene was also identified which contains the sequences TGTGGG-GGTGGG and TCTCTT-TCTCTT. This region has a sequence similarity to the core promoter region of the hsp70 gene. A prior art generally known

I have now worked in casino management for five years and in casino security for a year and a half. I have had similar jobs before in different areas of the casino. What I found out was that the security department is not all that great. The casino employees make the decisions, the management is in over their heads and it shows in the attitudes of the people. I found that the security and the compliance departments were not geared to be efficient at all. The compliance department gave inspectors reports which did not match up with what the investigations were. I had a casino where I had to get calls of 60 phone alarms a day. The security department, did not seem to get involved until there was a problem. I had more issues with one casino that was not following the rules than I had with my previous jobs combined. The tables were sloppy, the pit bosses always complained about the losses and the casino was much more interested in making money than they were making me money. In one security department, I remember that we had a meeting and the head of the department gave a memo saying what was and what was not allowed. When he turned the memo around the word 'NOT' had been changed to 'YES'. A week later, I got an email saying that 'YES' had been changed back to 'NOT' because he was not a lawyer and that he had a thick head. I feel that I am paid to protect the casino not to protect the patrons. Once I got done with my position, I did not return to the casino. No one at the casino was happy to hear that I had left the casino, the management seemed to think that they were doing me a big favor by giving
